account could easily be picked up by unauthorized individuals. A lot of individuals get fooled every time by the excuse that they forgot their password or by using default settings that are too simple to allow a cybercriminal to guess their username or password in order to gain access to their email account. Sadly, it seems that the situation has only got worse over the years, as now you can easily send your personal information to thousands of contacts at one time. This is one of the reasons why it has become so important to choose a security protocol that is guaranteed to keep your personal data safe from prying eyes. There are a number of different ways to protect your email account and your email messages, the majority of them relying on some form of encryption technology. The most popular systems are HTTPS, PGP and S/MIME, all of which are discussed below: Secure Email Protocols: The well-known and widely used Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) protocol has been around for years and it allows companies or individuals to create secure online environments for sending information, online transactions and online privacy. SSL is part of the Transport Layer Security protocol suite, which also includes the Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) version 3 protocol or, as it is commonly known, the SSL protocol version 3. Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) is the most well-known application protocol for the Internet. It is defined by the Internet Engineering Task Force (IETF) and operates on top of the Transmission Control Protocol (TCP). It provides security for communicating on the process. Although a first glance at the user interface may hint at a possible lack of features, the program is able to properly encrypt any kind of text you might throw at it, and in a short amount of time as well. The text area allows for easy copy-paste operations and it does not impose any restrictions on the total character length. Save the file on your computer as a plain text file. Once you are done choosing the desired decryption password and you save the document, a TXT file is created inside the preferred directory. Despite the fact that plain text files are the worst format you could use for sensitive data storage, it must be noted that the containing text is already encrypted and it requires the password in order to unravel it, so the file itself is useless.

without the proper decryption key. The simple TXT extension also make the documents very easy to handle and transfer over the Internet, since they are recognized by every platform and they can be easily attached to emails or included into a variety of other applications. In addition, they do not require any special software to be opened and read, although you do need zebNet Secure Text in order to make sense of them. In conclusion All in all, the very easy-to-use interface and fast overall procedure make zebNet Secure Text a very handy application to have around, especially if you find yourself often in the situation of having to send and receive sensitive information. zebNet Secure Text Features »

What's New in the ZebNet Secure Text?

zebNet Secure Text is a utility that will help you to securely transfer messages and documents as text-based files by encrypting them and adding the desired encryption key. You can then send the file to someone else and, by using their zebNet Secure Text software, they will be able to decrypt your message and read it. zebNet Secure Text is a free utility that you can download here. zebNet Secure Text Portable is software designed to enable you to secure your sensitive data from prying eyes by encrypting them using advanced algorithms, before you can safely send them to another person. Security applications should not only be used as a way to encrypt data, but they should also be able to undo those operations as well. zebNet Secure Text allows you to decrypt files, so that they can be used once again. With zebNet Secure Text Portable, even though the messages are already encrypted, you still have to enter the decryption password for it to be able to unlock the file. Additionally, since the encryption password is your only access to the file, the only way to obtain the password is by using the zebNet Secure Text application. As a result, you can never be sure that your data is completely safe, if you send it to other people in this way. However, if you secure your text as an email attachment or as a part of a file transfer over a file sharing website, then you will have the peace of mind of knowing that your data is completely safe. zebNet Secure Text Portable Features: zebNet Secure Text Portable is a convenient software application that is designed to help you safely send your sensitive messages and files over the Internet. You can encrypt your text as an attachment in an email message and, using the zebNet Secure Text software, you can then send it as an email. To be able to send encrypted emails, you have to enter the decryption password, which is your only way of gaining access to the file. Hence, you will only be able to undo the encryption process once you have the password. With zebNet Secure Text Portable, you can choose to encrypt your messages as they are being read by the receiver. This is particularly useful if you are sending a lengthy message that needs to be able to be read quickly. If you like to send a file using zebNet Secure Text, then you can secure the file as a part of a file transfer over a website like dropbox.com. Once the recipient has installed z
