What I want to do is have a TextView that tracks how many links are clickable right now (see example). Eg. This TextView has the text '', and currently there are 4 links (3 clickable). What I have been doing is using the HTML attributes onClick="window.location" and setText() in the onClick event (like below), but I'm not sure if there is a better way to implement this textView.setOnClickListener(new View.OnClickListener() { @Override public void onClick(View v) { if (textView.hasLink()) { textView.setText("No links") } else { linkView = (TextView) v; linkView.setText(linkView.getText().toString()); } } 570a42141b
