Through the system interface, you can update the program for Ubinex, which after the update will offer instead of the standard "send address" to add one of the options: "Private / Public (User / People)" / "Account (Address)" 270 Most likely, HotspotShield is not some purely Russian virus, but behind it is the DV-3 Trojan, which has recently been very actively traded on markets with different trading platforms. If this topic is relevant to you, watch the video review on the topic! P.S. Kaspersky Lab has concluded that participation in a virus-scanning program cannot be a sign that a computer is infected. However, this "positive result" is reported on many sites, including The Next Web. In the course of official testing, Kaspersky Lab specialists found only two spyware, one of which can be called utility, since it has nothing to do with viruses. Based on the test results, the company's specialists were offered three options for using the test: an additional scan of an infected computer or computer for malware, removal of spyware, and a second scan to detect other signs of infection. At the time of this writing, Kaspersky Lab experts confirmed that a computer running the Ubidware 7.2b operating system does not need to be cleaned or updated anti-virus databases to fully scan for viruses. The information in this material is obtained from The Neuterfeedback Tracker, a database that tracks and collects malware reviews from users who have purchased antivirus products or who volunteer as experts. According to reports, the malware found in the final versions of Ubidex 0.9.1 was found in third place in the purchase list of this tracker. Be vigilant!
