Ozeki VoIP SIP .NET SDK allows you to develop an IVR system with DTMF navigation written in VB.NET. In this example program, an IVR tree is created from an .xml file and .csv. All elements of the VOIP tree and elements of the IVR interface are variable and are output to a .csv file. In addition, this example has an `EventArgs` variable that is used to control the elements of the IVR tree. To develop an IVR system in which IVR tree elements are associated with IVR elements via DTMF, you will need to create an IVR tree that will associate IVR elements with DTMF switches and IVR interface elements (Fig. 1.39).
