Magic Affirmations is a fascinating software that lets you make your affirmations appear in regular intervals on your computer screen, while you are working on your computer. The software represents your affirmations as small icons that appear on the screen randomly at regular intervals, without you having to pay any attention to them. The effects of Magic Affirmations are not temporary, but they slowly become permanent. Magic Affirmations lets you choose your affirmations very easily. Just write down your desired thoughts on a piece of paper, and load them into the software. Every thought that you wish to add to your affirmations list can also be loaded into the software from your own address book or text editor, if you wish. After that, you can easily modify any of your affirmations by editing them on the screen. Finally, there is the possibility of assigning special positive states to each affirmation, which lets you display a certain affirmation on top of all other windows and makes it appear automatically in regular intervals. What are you waiting for? Start your positive journey right now! What's New In Magic Affirmations?

Magic Affirmations is software that lets you place your affirmations in your operating system. Every few minutes, a new, randomly chosen affirmation appears in a small window, which is displayed on top of all other windows. You can set the repetition rate of the affirmations yourself - which is useful if you want to force yourself to repeat your affirmations for a certain amount of time every day. The interval between the affirmations is not predefined by the application. It will automatically run for a few seconds. The application does not put any special restrictions on how you use your computer - in particular on whether you type while you have the affirmation on the screen. If you prefer to stay in contact with your positive statement, it can display it in a separate window that slowly opens on top of all other windows. The program is written in Visual Basic and runs under Windows XP/Vista.1. Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a wireless communications system, and more particularly, to a method of reporting a synchronization field value in a wireless communications system and an apparatus thereof. 2. Related Art In a radio access network (RAN), a radio link control (RLC) layer is configured to provide a radio link control function. The RLC layer provides reliable data transmission between a terminal and a base station (BS) by using a function of error detection and/or error correction in a wired communication network and performs a function of segmentation and/or concatenation in a wireless communication network. The RLC layer includes a function of segmentation and/or concatenation in order to improve the efficiency of radio resource utilization. In this regard, the segmentation function is a function of segmenting data received from an upper layer in a RLC layer, and the concatenation function is a function of concatenating the segmented data to form a PDU (protocol data unit). In such a wireless communications system, a transmitting side transmits a data and a control message via an RLC layer. The data and control message are generally transmitted together using the same slot in order to minimize time delay. In this case, it is preferable to have some fields in the control message and/or the data, that is, a PDU header, share common space. For example, a non-data header (NDH) field and a data field may share the same space. In addition, if an error occurs while data or control message is transmitted, a base station cannot receive it. Accordingly, there is a need for a method of recovering data or control message using an RLC layer that can minimize time delay and for a method of transmitting data or control message at the same time. In order to maintain integrity of a wireless communications system, a base station can transmit a control message or data in a slot designated by an RLC layer for this purpose. The base station can also
