
Trace Spy Crack + Keygen Download

Trace Spy is a software application that provides users with an alternative to SysInternals DebugView and a simple method of grabbing information from OutoputDebugString events and ETW providers traces. The upper hand of a portable app The installation process is not a necessity, as this product is portable. As a consequence, unlike installers, it is not going to add any new items to the Windows registry or Start menu/screen and it is not going to leave any kind of traces behind after its removal. Another important aspect that should be mentioned is that it is possible to run Trace Spy on any computer you have been granted access to and take it everywhere with you, by simply copying the program files to a removable data device. Straightforward environment The interface is minimal and intuitive, thus enabling both beginners and highly experienced people to find their way around it. Nonetheless, the lingo present all throughout the utility might pose some difficulties for the lesser experienced users. View capture information and tweak options Starting the capture is a one-click operation, while you should know that all results are going to be displayed in the main window along with information such as process, texts, ticks, process id and ETF description. Moreover, you can add new ETW providers, as well as change font type, stile and size, insert or edit filters and use a search function too look for items with more ease. Bottom line To conclude, Trace Spy is a pretty efficient piece of software, which only requires a minimal amount of CPU and memory, even during the capturing process. We did not encounter any errors, bugs or crashes during our tests, the response time was pretty good, yet it remains a tool mostly dedicated to power users. What's New in the Trace Spy?

Trace Spy - is a free tool for debugging, analyzing and recording Windows processes and OutoputDebugString events from all three systems (Server, Desktop and Client) and records them in a single file, one line at the time. Trace Spy automatically records all OutoputDebugString events from the following subsystems (a detailed list of the subsystems is available in the Logging window): • Registry • Direct3D • Games • System • DxDiag • Windows Communications Foundation (WCF) • Windows Media Format (WMP) • Windows Mobile • Windows Workflow Foundation (WF) • Windows Presentation Foundation (WPF) • Windows Shell (Shell32.dll) • Windows Shell (Hook.exe) • Winsock • WinHttp • OLE • QuickTime • Control Panel You can add your own custom subsystems to include in the recording. Once you are done recording, simply save the file using the specified path and name it, then open it in any Windows supported text editor and you will find a complete log of all the activities performed by the various subsystems you selected. Features: Record OutoputDebugString events from all the subsystems listed above. It is possible to limit the recording to processes running with the user or group of your choice. All OutoputDebugString events are recorded in separate files, one line at a time, so you can read and edit each line of data at any time. Trace Spy doesn't use any external resource, except the operating system, and thus it is a portable tool. Filter the OutoputDebugString events you want to record and preview them at the same time. The Logging window is fully customizable, thus it is possible to edit and change the fonts, styles, text alignment and colors to make the output file more appealing to the eyes. Click through buttons to start, stop and preview the capture, delete individual files or add new ones. Open the Trace file in any text editor that is supported by Windows, to view the captured data in a text format. Automatically start recording when the application is started. Run the trace in the background, which means the application will not be frozen. Option to play sounds, so you won't miss important events. You can also set Trace Spy to start with the system, thus you can capture and review the OutoputDebugString events generated by the entire system. Option to record two types of logs simultaneously, the standard and the debug logs. You can display images, HTML and Hyperlinks in the captured data. Option to save the captured logs as image files. The filter tool that allows you to select and exclude the events you want to record. Option to trim the captured data to only include the first N lines or the
