Influential makeup artist Pat McGrath has been working with models since the 80s, and the majority of big names in modeling today have been working in the industry for years. New York was the place to be for new talent in the 90s, so some of the best photographers in the industry came to this city to capture the beauty of the model. Runway shoots have been a rite of passage for new models in New York since the dawn of modeling. What a difference a couple of decades make. Now that our models are some of the best models in the world, it seems like their beauty is as much a part of the industry as their fashion. In the 90s and early 2000s, runway shoots were a launchpad for young models. Looking through the work of the many photographers who shoot fashion in New York today reveals that many of them are still adept at picking up new talent and their signature style is still present. This year at the Ford Agency show, we captured runway models for the 2017 Ford Agency show. Models were the stars of the night, but this year we wanted to get a photo of them from behind the scenes, so we did a photo shoot in an old warehouse. Shooting on location in New York is always a challenge, but once we moved inside the warehouse it was a piece of cake. After only a couple of hours of shooting, all of the girls did their hair and makeup in the building. We then put them all in one of the Ford Agency models' monogrammed suitcases and transported them to the new Ford Agency show venue, Pier 40. They continued to work on their hair and makeup during the show, and this helped to make the girls feel more ca3bfb1094

When you use markups in AutoCAD, you're able to send your feedback directly to the design team in your organization, make changes in the model as it's being reviewed, and obtain design review before you send the final product. With Import and Markup Assistant, you can generate feedback documents (PDFs, images, or PNGs) from your own drawings. Any changes you make will be automatically applied to the PDF as it's sent to the design team. You can also generate other markup documents from your drawings.
