DescargarLibroDeBioquimicaFeduchi11pdf DescargarLibroDeBioquimicaFeduchi11pdf I've seen multiple SO answers mentioning this error when troubleshooting installs via Docker (StackOverflow.com), but I still don't understand why I'm getting this error. Is there a way to get this to work with the tar.xz packages? A: I had a similar issue when installing DokuWiki 1.5.0. The problem is that you are installing a file that is not a Debian package. You can get rid of this error by copying the deb file to the server: # cp dokuwiki-1.5.0.0-deb-1.5.0.0.amd64.deb /tmp/ Then, install it in a Debian-based environment with: dpkg -i /tmp/dokuwiki-1.5.0.0-deb-1.5.0.0.amd64.deb Now, let's dive in. Error The error you are getting is this: Unable to locate package dokuwiki This error message is pretty self-explanatory. If you are not familiar with Debian packages, then this is nothing new. You can install the Debian package directly from deb files if you know where the deb file is on your system. However, some packages are not available through Debian but only available for some Linux distributions. For Debian, the way to go is to install the deb file. You can see what the deb file is inside: dpkg -x dokuwiki-1.5.0.0-deb-1.5.0.0.amd64.deb. Here you can see that dokuwiki-1.5.0.0-deb-1.5.0.0.amd64.deb is a file that contains a lot of Debian packages. If you have the tar.gz file, you would be better off converting it to a deb file through your Linux distribution. For example, you can do this in Ubuntu using: # dpkg-deb -b dokuwiki-1.5.0.0.tar.gz. If you are using CentOS, you can use: # tar -zxvf dokuwiki-1.5

A: The previous paragraph of your post mentions you are using Ubuntu. I'm almost certain your file system is NTFS (unless you are using a Linux live distro/live media), and NTFS is a relatively limited filesystem. While I'm not proficient in English, I did a quick search on the phrase you used, and I'm guessing that is meant to be "is a limited filesystem." I'm pretty sure that does not mean anything in NTFS. Q: Deleting file with single quotes On my linux box, I have a file which is enclosed with single quotes: '/etc/ks.conf.txt'. I would like to delete this file using: sudo rm '/etc/ks.conf.txt'. However, the system returns the following error: rm: cannot remove '/etc/ks.conf.txt': No such file or directory How should I escape single quotes so that the file could be successfully removed? A: Remove single quotes: sudo rm '/etc/ks.conf.txt' Or: sudo rm '/etc/ks.conf.txt' And double quotes, as "you cannot write to a directory with name '/etc/ks.conf.txt'": sudo rm "/etc/ks.conf.txt" Or: sudo rm "/etc/ks.conf.txt" Or: sudo rm "/etc/ks.conf.txt" Or: sudo rm "/etc/ks.conf.txt" Or: sudo rm "/etc/ks.conf.txt" And a suggestion: never ever to use rm to delete files, it does not do it, nor does it do it smartly. Use instead, for example, sudo rmdir to remove a directory: sudo rmdir /etc/ks.conf.txt A large portion of the area surrounding the San Francisco Bay is designated open space. Yet California's largest bay is also home to two of the state's largest cities, San Francisco and San Jose.
