We are living in an exciting technological era where creativity and technological development are combined. Thanks to Extensible 3D you can cut the last barriers of 3D modelling and animation and make your own virtual worlds. Once the content is ready, you can 3D print your avatars, animations and soon your models and scenes! They may be available in web-based applications such as Zbrush, Maya, 3D Studio or Blender. The same file format is currently used in automotive design. Content included in this DLC (the "Bundles") is offered "AS-IS" and is free of charge for all owners of CUR3D Steam Edition, non-steam users have to make a simple payment to "iMAL" from their Steam accounts in order to get the file available from CUR3D Steam Edition. COMPATIBILITY CUR3D Steam Edition + Extensible 3D CUR3D Steam Edition comes on two platforms: - for Windows 7 and higher - for Windows XP and lower It is a simple procedure to install Extensible 3D, you may follow the instructions on www.extensible3d.com/tour/platforms/ which can be found on CUR3D Steam Edition Features: Extensible 3D export file format compatible with all other programs and not proprietary. Export *.x3d files compatible with Autodesk Maya, 3D Studio Max, Zbrush, Blender, etc. Import 3D models from *.x3d file extensions, add animation and lights, and render the scenes. Export 3D models in several materials (slabs, meshes, skins, textures, etc.) Export 3D models in several formats (compressed by JPEG, PNG or WAVE) Export video sequences in different formats (compressed by MPEG, AVI, MOV, WMV, etc.) Generate 360-degree photos (compressed by JPEG, PNG or WAVE) Export/import 3D models that can be 3D printed directly by the user without need to export the scenes. Object and scene 3D models in *.x3d format can be imported/exported by other CAD software, like Autodesk Maya, Blender, and 3D Studio Max. Graphic interface with file explorer and drag/drop functionality Isolated management of your files so you can share them without problems between external files Import/

Features Key:

A turn based game where players alternate between a "CORE" and a "Diversion" role while both are on their turn.

Characters

Each player is a soldier doing their duty as best they can in a war against an unnamed faction.

These soldiers are battling an unnamed enemy on the Eastern Front of the WW1.

The CORE role has two tasks on a turn, keeping track of logistics and depending on what unit they are (a Close Combat unit, like a tank, a City Infantry unit, like a rifleman, a Motorized unit, like a Horse Drawn Infantry unit, etc).

The player uses a die roll to see if they have that unit in their hand. If they do, and they have enough deployables, they move it from their base to a position on the board that is currently under enemy control.

The Diversion role is an optional role that is normally played by someone filling in when a CORE decides to go on "Sabbath".

The Sabbath is a third task for the CORE, saving the game, ending the game and controlling a small group of units called "Frozen Ones" that can contribute to the victory of the side. The players use d6s to roll for Supremacy, Control, Attack, or Destroy (5 successful yields a "Victory Condition" that they end the game).

Control grants the CORE the "Sabbath" role. Control refers to creating a unit with a number of dice greater than the current Leadership, and moving it to a position on the board controlled by the player.

The player may move his entire army but not more than two shared figures (one on each side).

To attack, the CORE must play out as many dice as he is allowed. The die is the same number as the Combat Value (CV) of the unit. For a team with 4 CV dice, each player rolls 3 of them.

The CORE must roll a 3 or higher, and add the value of the die to the Attack roll. The attacker may move only one figure per die, and any figures moved by dice that roll a 2

Play as long as you live! User Reviews of Mah Jong Quest III Really goes down a treat 20 May 2012 Reviewed on Steam. A fantastic mahjong game, this game is well worth playing. From adventure game purists to those who like trickier mahjong, this game has something for everyone. The first mahjong game I played, but it's still one of my favourite games, (I'm actually playing it atm). A really nice change from all the 2d games that have come out recently. Essential 4 May 2012 Reviewed on Steam. Fun, enjoyable mahjong type of game. The start screen appears to take some time but it has lots of tiles. The story is good (not too long) and the characters are reasonably well animated. The controls are easy to learn - just a tap left to swap and a tap right to swap but there are options to swap more than 2 or swap which tile to swap. The game tells you what tile to use when you place a swap, at least until you get to the higher levels. The levels are basically the same but more complicated. You start by swapping a pair of tiles, then triples, and so on. There is

. " "Yes, I'm familiar with the road." "Well, this footpath... it shouldn't exist." "Shouldn't exist?" "Yeah." "Anyone can see this isn't a footpath." "It runs right along the edge of the cliff." "Someone designed it for a purpose." "Yes, but why?" "Surely it can't be a coincidence that this headland exists." "This peninsula was chosen." "It is purposefully there." "Wh-Why?" "Helen, shouldn't we be discussing that with the police?" "No, no, no." "I'm taking you home." "Your wife called, by the way." "Helen?" "Yes." "What is it?" "Nothing." "She didn't get you anything from the shop?" "No." "She just... told me that Astrid's taken your car." "I'm not gonna have anything left to take home." "Astrid's car is gone." "I parked it on the cliff road." "At the House in the Woods." "A beautiful little cottage near the cliffs." "Well, where's Nancy?" "Then you've heard from her?" "I saw her last night on the cliff road with Astrid." "I arrived home and the car was gone." "You know, there's really no need to call anyone with this story." "Astrid saw me returning from a walk on the cliffs, and... asked me to speak to Nancy." "How does Astrid know about the car?" "Did she talk to her?" "No." "She's collecting some things for you." "What's in the bag?" "I really don't need anything right now." "Nancy looked happy." "She looked... well, she looked... relieved." "Should we try to call her parents?" "I'm sure they've got her cell phone on." "I don't think so." "They were hoping to get here this evening." "How did they find out where you were?" "I told them the best place to stay." "I really don't think it's my business how they found out." "You don't want me staying?" "You've spent your life on your own, in quiet retreats, in beautiful places." "Astrid wants to know, can she come here?" "He's asleep." "You can try again tomorrow." "Okay." "Try to speak to him about the night of the accident."
