

"We have been working on new gameplay elements for a number of years and are now at the point where we can start developing new game mechanics and see how they work within our game," said Emre Kurtenay, Head of FIFA Game Development. "Using data from real-life player movement, we were able to recreate a full-intensity, high-tempo football match. This has enabled us to design and build gameplay experiences that feel authentic to the game." Watch the FIFA 22 gameplay trailer. Just like real-world football, the in-game player movements, tackles, runs and attacks will feel more authentic and authentic-looking, thanks to the additional physics and animation techniques used. Players will also run and move more intelligently, reacting to situations as they occur and changing their angles to achieve success. FIFA 22 also introduces a new seasonal season mode, where users will build a team and compete in a series of matches against their friends. The mode will be available for online multiplayer throughout the year. "These new modes will be available for all FIFA fans to enjoy," said Remy Clapin, Executive Producer of FIFA. "We are constantly looking to explore new types of content to keep the players engaged, and these new modes will help create more interesting and varied matches." "Our development process for FIFA and future FIFA games is built around the work of our FIFA Squad," Clapin continued. "We have an amazing group of passionate people that care deeply about our game and players, and their feedback and ideas are invaluable in helping make each FIFA game better. I'd like to especially thank them for their outstanding support for FIFA 22." "The new seasonal mode will be available for all FIFA fans to enjoy." - Remy Clapin, Executive Producer of FIFA Fans can now also jump into the new Mini-FIFA World Cup mode and enjoy career mode for free. The Mini-FIFA World Cup experience will be available throughout FIFA 22 worldwide in upcoming weeks. During the FIFA 22 release window, the season mode and World Cup will be free and unlocked for all online users. FIFA players will be able to experience the new HyperMotion Technology in the upcoming FIFA 22 beta, which starts in early 2019. Players will have access to the new modes at their earliest opportunity.

What's new in Fifa 22:

- Introducing “HyperMotion Technology” technology that generates more realistic player movement based on the actions of real-life footballers.
- New Player Modification system: make players better - call for the whole team to defend every ball, take a foul or counter-attack the game for a win. Plus, practice makes perfect! Winning will improve your player attributes and skills and result in a better overall rating.
- New player-career: Guide your new talent from trial to the Pro as you progress through your career. Attribute points are earned in each game, and the more matches played, the more determined your attributes and skills.
- New player attributes: Strength, Agility, Speed, Stamina, Power, Technique, Technique Acquisition, Intelligence. Use as you see fit to give your Pro a competitive edge.
- A New Approach to Training: Set training parameters to get the most out of your players. Aim to improve your all-round attributes or stick with just the go-to skills for your chosen role. Or train your team tactically to execute key moves or to win the ball back. You can also customize training with a whole range of training drills to work on specific muscle groups. Change tactics, formations or maximize training time all from the new Training Pane, plus you can decide whether your players can choose to take “sickies” or stay at the training ground every day. Management culture is also affected by gameplay options such as game difficulty or rule variations. Make your voice heard.
- Complete Player Path: Take your hero through the lower divisions to make your way through the first team all the way to the big time. Rivalries, manager milestones and rewards make this season’s gameplay really feel personal. Earn experience and attributes to buy transfer-market based player attributes, more or less health, fitness or skill.
- Brand New Stadiums: 6 unique stadiums and the new Rough Park, built by London 2012 Olympic Stadium. Designed by Sepp Blatter and Jurgen Klopp, packed with new features including animation and crowds, all environments are completely customizable. Over half a million new icons have been created in-game, covering every detail of the game for the most authentic football experience you’ll find anywhere.
