Q: Cannot read property of undefined in ckeditor for ajax For some reason it still shows as undefined in the inspector. I tried doing `global.ckeditor.reset()` but that did not do the trick. Here is what is happening: 1 - The ajax makes a call to a php file which returns an image 2 - The javascript file creates the Editor based on the response 3 - I use ajax to save the entire file with any changes `$(document).ready(function(){ $("#newpost").submit(function() { var formData = $("#newpost").serialize(); $.ajax({ type: "POST", url: "ajax/save_post.php", data: formData, cache: false, dataType: 'html', success: function(data) { var editor = CKEDITOR.instances['newpost']; editor.updateElement(data); editor.resize(800, 500); editor.updateElement(); CKEDITOR.instances['newpost'].setData(editor.getData()); CKEDITOR.instances['newpost'].show(); } }); return false; }); });` I know that ajax works because if I use the browsers tools I can see that the image is being created. Here is my php: if

Mega Millions sales continue as California declares winner The Mega Millions jackpot reached $1.6 billion Wednesday, drawing more than 16 million players who bought winning tickets and broke records for prizes on the largest jackpot in U.S. history. People in the San Jose area had to wait five days after the draw to have their names drawn as a California winner Wednesday night, and then they were told they had won a share of the $550 million jackpot, the largest payout in the U.S. lottery's history. "That's the best thing in the world," said Gayle Rogers, a San Jose resident who was visiting from out of state. "I just happened to come in at the right time.... I'm so happy for my family. They're from North Carolina. We'll make the trip up there." The jackpot for Wednesday's drawing was the second-largest in U.S. history, only to the $1.58 billion Powerball jackpot won in March in Florida. Earlier Wednesday, the California Lottery said it sold its share of the biggest jackpot in the U.S. lottery's history and that its players didn't win. "The California Lottery may have sold a winning ticket, but we did not sell a winning ticket in this drawing," the agency said in a statement. Eligible players in California automatically were given the right to buy one ticket for $2, without paying the additional fee. As the number of winners remained unknown, fans of the lottery had their own theories about how many of them might have won. The California Lottery's Facebook page drew fans' attention to previous large jackpots, and some speculated that there was a pattern to them. "Is it possible that people are betting small and hoping big?" a post under the heading "Huh?" read. "If you're a betting person and you believe there's no such thing as miracles, then these figures may interest you." The winning numbers for Wednesday's jackpot were 17, 38, 49, 51 and a Powerball of 17. "We put thousands of tickets in circulation," said Janet Gibson, executive director of the California Lottery. "We're never disappointed. The six winning numbers have been drawn." That means that some tickets in the jackpot's pool will be worth much more than $550 million. Ticket prices vary, with the cost of a Mega
