I am worried that he gets too little sleep as a result of doing his homework every evening. How do I persuade him to do his homework at a different time of day? What about school - do they think that he is not doing enough? We have a 4yr old daughter and a 3yr old son. One of our sons is very bright and seems like he might be a "10th" child. Our daughter seems to be more of a

"9th." This is at a school where children are split up into small sections - three classes to a class. They will alternate between two classes every two weeks. They are happy with their weekly homework from home. But our daughter would like to be able to do her
