Importing your image The first thing you should do when you start any image-editing project is import your image. You can import either from a camera, memory card, or disk into your computer. In the same way that you may make adjustments to an image on your computer, before you do, you should import a copy of it. This way, you can make the changes to the original copy instead of the image on your computer screen. If you work from a camera memory card, you can simply copy the image from the card into your computer. If you work on a disk or memory card that isn't connected to a computer, you can download the image to a computer, open Photoshop, and import it into the program. To import an image, do one of the following: * If you have a previously saved image on your computer, open it and click Open in the Open dialog box. From the original window that opens, go to File \rightarrow Open

The Photoshop Brush allows you to paint and create art with one of several brushes provided by Adobe. The Brush tools can be used to paint, shape, add detail, blend, and composite an image. You can choose from five to 10 different brushes. Pen tools can be used to add effects to your images. They can be used to create shapes, and create dotted or cross-hatching strokes. The Eraser tool allows you to remove certain parts of an image. Photoshop has a few preset filters. The Basic Filter, Blur filter, Color Filter, and Levels filter can be used to add a gradient or pattern fill to an image. This adds a background that fades out, or that is flat and continuous. The Glow filter can be used to create a glowing effect to your image, like the effect seen on stars. Learn the basics of Photoshop Photoshop Photoshop is an image-editing software program that allows you to work with layers. Layers are essentially a frame around a photo and are used to create an image using layers. Layers are a frame, a canvas, around an image that allow us to do a lot of things, actually. We're going to do a floating water effect. Image: waterb.net The next thing that we're going to do is a gradient that I have is not going to add on top of the image. It's going to add a layer mask, and I have an opacity mask, which means that the white means that the white means it's 100% transparent, and the black means it's 100% opaque. Image: waterb
