weapon against a child, and two counts of cruelty to a child, after being bitten by an 8-month-old. He was released from prison in 2015 under the supervision of Florida Department of Corrections, and is currently serving an 18-year probation term, which means he has to be in a program that lets him be around kids. The reality TV star, currently on "Celebrity Wife Swap" and "Shameless," was filmed sitting on the first floor of the school. The 10-year-old girl has been a student at the Boca Raton school for the last year, and wrote a letter to the new principal after the incident. In it, she also said Traum had asked to come into her classroom and talk to the other students. "I cannot find it in my heart to be a good teacher to you and your peers because of the way you say Mr. Traum touched me," writes the child. "He didn't care if I was humiliated in front of everyone or not. Everyone should learn not to touch girls or boys when there is not a reason to do it." Dwayne Traum, who was president of the 10-year-old's class in elementary school, also apologized to the student. Traum's lawyer, Joe Tacopina, told the News Service of Florida that the star of "Laguna Beach," and former Boca Raton resident "was just giving a back rub and trying to help," adding that he was trying to lessen a student's pain from a medical condition. Tacopina also said Traum was under "the greatest amount of stress at work" as he and costar Kevin McHale had just begun filming the feature film "Sister Act 2: Back in the Habit."
