OpenOffice Calc Extract Text From ODS Files Software OpenOffice Calc Extract Text From ODS Files Software Create a table of contents page in OpenOffice 3.0. In the 2.4 release, there is no dedicated table of contents page in OpenOffice Calc. This means that instead of providing an easy way to manage the reading order of your documents, the Table of Contents just points to the Cell, Paragraph or Page. As a result you can add the TOC several times to your document without much problem. In this release of OpenOffice Calc, you can add a TOC with a simple button right in the document by clicking. If you have a table of contents elsewhere in your document and you want to move the TOC to this table of contents, do the following: Open the TOC, find the title for the first entry (within the TOC), click the button that brings up the TOC to select the content in that TOC. This action brings up a "Find TOC" option that allows you to pick that TOC from anywhere in the document. Change the TOC title, or add a title. Open the TOC file in the "Document Properties" window. Go to "View" and choose "TOC" (or "TOC 2.4") from the left-hand list. If your TOC has multiple pages, you'll be taken to the "Summary Page" rather than the "first page". In the "TOC Summary", go down to the line for "Selected Page" (before the blank line). There, you'll see a selection of all of the entries in your TOC. If you choose one, it's highlighted in blue. At the bottom of the page, you'll see another entry that says "Create". Click it. A new TOC is created for you. Note You might be better off using a "Sequential TOC" in an external file, rather than the TOC that's built-in to OpenOffice. This is a sequence of entries, and you can edit it as a list. For example, you can insert "flavor" before "cake", and have the TOC jump to the location where "cake" comes
