encrypt is a free of charge and easy-to-use data encryption application. Its primary features include the ability to encrypt files and folders, safely store passphrases to encrypt or decrypt files, create self-destructing data (such as e-mail or image attachments), use zero-length padding for a faster encryption/decryption operation, and quickly compress or encrypt files and folders. encrypt is extremely easy to use and can be installed in an instant, by simply running the program file. The interface is indeed quite user-friendly and features a panel where you can select the type of data you want to encrypt/decrypt, the initial password and a few other options. After this, a new folder is generated, which will hold encrypted files. Important note: When using encrypted files, be certain that you use a different password for every encrypted file (these are known as passphrases) to decrypt them. A few extra features Unlike other similar applications, encrypt gives you a few extra features, such as the ability to decrypt files while working on them, compress and encrypt files using another passphrase or create compressed archives of multiple files. encrypt was designed to encrypt files and folders, yet it is also possible to encrypt individual files. In order to do this, after identifying the data in your image, you need to simply click on the image and, after that, navigate to the "Text" tab. 3 Text box options are available in the "Text" tab, with the first one allowing you to choose the code for the data, followed by the string of tags.
