Is there a C# equivalent of Excel.VBProject? What is easier for Excel developers? Or can the Excel class get good enough for those developers? thank you. A: Excel COM is only available in VBA, and if you have an old MS Office binary installed you have to install Visual Studio to convert them to.NET. If you are not tied to Excel VBA, better use some other.NET library, e.g. NPOI or EPPlus. A: Dyanamic Data is very good library for Excel.

Very quiet shooting action.Percutaneous coronary intervention versus medical therapy in patients with stable coronary artery disease and congestive heart failure. The optimal treatment for patients with congestive heart failure (CHF) and stable coronary artery disease (CAD) is unclear. The purpose of this study was to compare outcomes in patients with both stable CAD and CHF treated with medical therapy (MT) or percutaneous coronary intervention (PCI). Using the U.S. National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute's Myocardial Ischemia National Evaluation (MINIE) Registry, we identified 166 patients with CAD and CHF who underwent coronary angiography and either PCI or MT. Patients were followed for a median of 54 months. Outcomes were death, myocardial infarction (MI), and stroke. The MT group had significantly more comorbidities than the PCI group, including a higher rate of diabetes mellitus, left ventricular hypertrophy, hypertension, prior revascularization, and cancer. Although the primary outcome of death or MI occurred less often in the PCI group, the rate of death was significantly higher in the PCI group (p = 0.04). The rate of stroke was higher in the PCI group (p = 0.06). Patients with CAD and CHF are not a homogeneous population. In the MINIE Registry, patients with CHF treated with MT had better survival and less death from cardiovascular causes and less stroke than patients with CAD treated with PCI. The significantly higher rate of stroke in PCI-treated patients with CHF, however, highlights the risk of this treatment strategy./* * Copyright (C) 2000 Lars Knoll (knoll@kde.org d41b202975

What's new:

- 9'0° Bearclaw Lite Compound Bow Mild Mannered Hunter Original $ 199.00 Manufacturer: The Bearclaw Lite is a powerful compound bow designed to be as affordable as possible. It takes light compound bow technology and replaces the gold plated bow hardware and intricate incised artwork of higher-end bow designs with upgraded, more utilitarian hardware and standard, non-incised artwork. An ideal bow for casual bowhunters or anyone who wants exceptional arrow speed and accuracy but can't afford the high ticket of a custom-designed or high-end bow. This is an extremely lightweight bow with a full 22" 5/8" crossbow-style carbon bow limb. It has a flex of just over 72 pounds. Knife edge travel arrows are standard and will provide amazing arrows speeds and long range hunting ability. Compound bows have become the standard choice for hunting whitetail deer because they offer speed, accuracy, and good range. The Bearclaw Lite offers all of the advantages of a bow, with an MSRP of less than $200. Anyone who wants a powerful hunting tool, but would also appreciate a little value, will appreciate the U.S. made, U.S. made Bearclaw Lite! Louisiana Attorney General Jeff Landry twice sued the vaping industry, seeking to force its manufacturers to fix allegedly “deceptive” marketing practices. Mr. Landry filed three lawsuits against vaping companies, CBD Oil and Hemp Industries Association (HIA) and the Louisiana Vapor Industries Association (LVIA) over the prohibition of conversion devices, commonly referred to as IQVIA boxes. The R.J. Reynolds of consumer e-cigarette products, Philip Morris International and Altria, the makers of traditional cigarettes, joined the lawsuit, continuing the vicious downward cycle of “vaping” behavior and anti-vaping sentiment even further. Mr. Landry led off his suit against vapers on Sept. 28, 2017, against both the HIA and LVIA, and again on Sept. 4, 2018, against the LVIA alone. While Mr. Landry's rhetoric claiming that “vapor products present a serious risk to the public health,” is “ridiculous”, and even being compared to cigarettes, it has still found a foothold in other statehouses. In Florida, State Rep. Carlos Guillermo Smith brought the “whataboutism?” defense against vape regulation, and in New York State, reports circulated that self-proclaimed vape lovers may be working together to help a bill be introduced to end the prohibition of the cannabis farm. Mr. Landry deserves wide bipartisan support for his efforts to protect Louisiana citizens from the “deceptive” vapers and vape sellers. Cigarettes kill 80% of people worldwide, 95% of people in America are addicted and die of their habit or addiction. Vaping products are much less harmful than these weapons of mass destruction, and cause no comparable increase in the risks for addiction or death. Moreover, vaping products prevent the upwards of 90% of regular smokers from becoming regular smokers and ultimately to the grave tobacco cigarettes. Profiling and scapegoating vaping products and their users is not only impermissible, but it also creates anti-industry sentiment for non-existent
