Blaston is a first-person multiplayer survival shooter built in VR using the same engine as our popular free game, Raw Data. Set in a dystopian future where civilization has collapsed and most of humanity are left stranded on a giant planetoid, players will have to make tough decisions to survive. The gameplay is fully standalone in that it is fully playable without the use of the Raw Data core mechanics. The point-and-shoot nature of the game combined with the intense 4-player gameplay mixed with a very tense atmosphere makes for an experience you won't forget quickly. Key Features: - Play solo or with up to four other players in the same room, each controlling their own unique ship. - Survive alone or with a team of three up to four online players. - Visit a vast selection of multiplayer worlds with unique biomes, full of new features and surprises. - An impressive game design featuring rigid physics and a fast paced gameplay with an updated ranking system. - A weapon crafting system with a dynamic loadout system. - Find and mine resources, gather ingredients for new weapons, and expand your ship for more room. - Enjoy the game in both social and competitive play. Free update 1.01 is now available and adds a ton of new features! Here's the full list, more info is in this thread. • Get a 2x faster loading time and less stuttering in multiplayer games. • Be sure to update your game to take advantage of it. • Landing problems will now return faster and you will no longer be stuck in free-fall mode (going straight into ground and burning is now available). • You will be better able to aim at the objectives in competitive play. • The shooting of similar-colored objects will now look consistent across all vehicles, as well as the miniguns. • Blasting should be more fun! • Be sure to check out our growing community of Discord server links in this thread. • Check out the recently updated FAQ in this thread. • And don't forget to check out our Landing System on Steam! Can you believe it? It's our 9-year anniversary! Nothing more appropriate than celebrating it by releasing a brand new FREE update with an extra mission, more maps, and a bunch of bugs patched. Well, that's this week's roundup. ?

Looking for a download that will create a new user profile and you won't need to register again? Or maybe you want to set your resolution. You can find this sort of thing with plenty of software, but ZYT does it better than any other program we know of. As with every program that does the same thing, you might find yourself asking yourself: "Is there a better software that I should be using instead?" Well, the answer is yes. ZYT is by far the most comprehensive and easy to use program. With ZYT you can edit settings, create profiles and save them for future use. You can also download other games and program files into your save file. If you ever decide to leave the game, your profile is saved in the save file you can simply open it again and continue your game from there. To create a new profile, click the Create Profile button on the main menu. You can choose the profile's name and specify what settings you want to use when starting the game. The most common option would be resolution, but you can use the program to set up all sorts of features, including file overwrite protection, picture compression, and screen saver options. There are also settings for sound, music, speech and more. Whenever you play a game, it will automatically be associated with your profile. You can change the settings for that game, but you can also completely remove it. When you are ready to create a new profile, click the Create Profile button at the top of the main menu. This will bring up the Edit Profile window, which gives you access to all of the settings in your profile. You can create as many profiles as you like. If you want, you can use different settings for each profile, and use the ability to store

What's new in Oil Rush OST:

, Obama Oil Regulations Far Worse Than Bush ISR “When I hear the term ‘radical innovation,’ the context of that term is national security,” says Matthew Renda, CEO of SkyTerra (Nasdaq:SKYP). “Both the Republican and Democratic politicians have sought to put in place aggressive, high-cost programs that would not be feasible without federal intervention. This strikes me as more of the same.” Mr. Renda says that if the oil companies discover a truly big new idea for energy production, the feds would never be allowed to patent the technology. Anyone involved in oil and gas exploration, and production, should be fired up at the Air Force advances. That might explain why the professional environmentalists have seen the absence of government in the form of DOE subsidies, loan guarantees and the ROIL program, and the absence of private investment, such as the drilling of new wells, and the development of new technologies, as the reason for the decline in productivity of the U.S. oil and gas industry. The result is that the U.S. has been enjoying the benefits of lower oil prices, along with the employment benefits, of a rapidly declining world oil market, a frightening record in the amount of oxygen in the atmosphere, driven up by the ongoing trend in increased carbon emissions by humans, at the cost of $4 gas for a tank of gas that in 2008 was in the $2 range, back when any such number was routinely taken for granted. This bonanza for consumers in gas and oil spanned the George W. Bush administration until July 2009, when the Obama administration took over, and many would hope, that the pendulum would swing back to the typical pro-drilling Republican policy. As much as the Democrats on all levels of government support the oil industry by derailing the development of alternatives to the use of hydrocarbons, and limiting or barring carbon capture, the Obama administration has carved out a new paradigm for the federal government — the federal government will continue to vastly expand its economic reach into a wide range of fields. By way of background, to trace some of the reasons that the making of more oil in the United States, and in the rest of the world, is coming to a halt, the following report by Energy Secretary Steven Chu, from October, 2007, illustrates perfectly

why the administration decided to not engage in more drilling and exploration programs in the United States while continuing the subsidies to the
