The company recently put out a set of dietary guidelines that ask customers to go vegan, but the guidelines are about as rigid as a cashmere sweater — saying nothing about how to make sure your diet is "healthy," or "nutritious," or even ethical. But some vegans, like Keshavarzian, say the guidelines provide no guidance at all. "I love the G-Star Raw franchise, and they have some great vegan options. But it is clear that they are not interested in spreading a vegetarian lifestyle or promoting plant based eating," Keshavarzian told BuzzFeed News. "If they are concerned with customer retention and sustainability, they should hold off on these guidelines and market toward a more healthy, sustainable lifestyle." G-Star Raw issued a statement to BuzzFeed News saying that the guidelines were not designed to make vegan cooking easier. "To reiterate, G-6d1f23a050
