Field of the Invention The invention relates to a connector connecting a wire harness to an electrical control unit, and more particularly to a connector connecting a wire harness to an electrical control unit having a flame-retardant layer. 2. Description of the Related Art A motor vehicle is equipped with an electrical control unit (ECU) for controlling electric equipment mounted in the motor vehicle, including an engine, an air-conditioning unit, a lighting equipment and the like. The ECU includes a substrate assembly formed of two power terminals and one ground terminal. The power terminals are connected to the wire harness, and the ground terminal is connected to a chassis. The ECU is provided with a flame-retardant layer at the surface thereof, to prevent fire damage to the substrate assembly. The ECU is mounted in an engine compartment of the motor vehicle, where the engine compartment is exposed to the air, so that the flame-retardant layer may be gradually peeled from the ECU by the temperature of the motor vehicle. The wire harness connected to the ECU includes a wire group connected to the substrate assembly. The wire group includes a plurality of wires that are connected to the power terminals and the ground terminal. The wire group includes a shield wire to prevent noise, a grounding wire to conduct the ground terminal to the ground, and a plurality of signal wires connected to the power terminals. The signal 6d1f23a050
